HEADTEACHER'S BLOG

Autumn Days- 'when the grass is jewelled.'

Dear Families and Friends of Cavalry,

Summer seems truly over now as we head into the colder mornings and progressively darker winter nights. Please could you remember to send the children with coats and warmer clothes as the weather starts to change. Lunchtime can feel like a lifetime on the playground if you are not wrapped up warm.

As the weather turns colder, we get less hours of sunshine and the inevitable winter gloom kicks in please could we remember to 'be kind' to each other when dropping off or collecting our children from school. Whether this is in the professional conversations you have with staff at the doors of the classroom or with each other as you wait to collect your children.

If you have any concerns with regards to any situations which may have arisen throughout the school day, I would very much like to encourage you to speak to school in the first instance. Staff will always be ready to talk about how best to support your child and what next steps have been put in place.

Following this Blog we will be sharing with you a new Parental Code of Conduct. This outlines the types of desired behaviours we want at our school to help make drop off and collection times happy occasions for all concerned.

To finish I am delighted to announce that following a rigorous interview process both Mr Webb and Miss Ellis have been made Deputy Headteachers this week.

I know you will want to wish them well as they take on their new roles.

Have a wonderful rest of the week. Looking forward to catching up with you all at the school gates.

Mrs Edwards :)
